A Note on Dating
During her younger years, Opie’s letters were often incompletely dated, sometimes showing only the day of the week. The exact date can sometimes be established by careful reading, but where this is not the case, the dating has been narrowed down as far as possible. Letters which are impossible to date accurately will be found in a separate list after the main one.
After 1825, Amelia Opie used the Quaker system of dating, written, e.g., as ‘1st Mo., 3rd, 1827’, which corresponds to 3 January 1827. All dates have been normalized in the following list to a numerical day/month/year format.

Realises how dear he is to her when she sees him dispirited as now. Wishes to give him her reaction to the 'change meditated by thee': giving up Earlham. Points to value of good friend who 'may marry for esteem only, and, in time, love may come indeed... I feel encouraged to hope that the man of all my acquaintances whom I think the most likely to make a good, nay, most excellent husband, namely your own dear self, will ere long possess that domestic happiness which he so well deserves.'

No ack. of her earlier letters from AC. She has been staying in the country with Mr Wilberforce — ‘a very delightful companion’. W’s wife ‘stands alone’ in ‘religious gloom’. AO revising ms. Of petition to be presented to parliament on 14/9: insufficient signatories of weight to be taken seriously, she feels. Incessant rain: expects poor harvest. Reminds him to write.

20/10/1816 Miss E Alderson

Matronising tone, as to children. Visit of ‘Billy Smith, my member’. Chides them in fun for not writing and for being ‘play-going varlets’ w. Tom, seeing Keane and Kemble from the pit. Of Keane’s powerful performances. Enquires of their activities, of Tom’s new house. Writes of her poverty and a dream involving the Prince Regent.

27/11/1816 Archibald Constable
Still no reply from AC. Tom A has been trying to have AC’s son to his house. No luck so far.

Regrets they cannot visit her in N’ch. but hopes they will soon. Tom’s kindness to his sisters, and Ed’s delight in having two young ladies to escort. Of calming influence of Earlham, its master and F Buxton after her ‘paroxysm of misery’ a day ago.

Of an advertisement addressed to young women, encl., that they may take advantage (yesterday’s Courier). Of gold leaf from Mrs Wilson. Can they hire a bed for her when she visits so as not to turn Tom out of his? JJG returns on Thursday. Priscilla retns from Nice. 18/9/1817  Archibald Constable
No letter from AC but a ‘valuable present’ of books which ‘reached her at a moment of severe indisposition’. Enjoyed them. Doesn’t know author’s name, but feels he is an old acquaintance. Also ‘handsome’ broach. Woodhouse, mathematician, wishes enclosed bk reviewed in Edin. Rev. Also mentions Wm Taylor’s English Sinanimes – sent earlier, but not yet reviewed. Taylor needs the boost. AO misses Edinburgh: ‘I go about in Scotch bonnets’, is reading Albin’s Anthology. Thomson’s present of songs & accompaniments. Wishes to kill a calumny arising in Beloe’s Sexagenarian – i.e. she first saw Horne Tooke at his trial (1794). Story of her ‘having scrambled over chairs and tables to get up to him on his acquittal, then kissed him in public court, is as false as it is malignant. Such conduct not even my youth could have excused ... an outrage on the delicacy of my sex.’ Also, never saw H M Williams until 1802 in Paris and ‘Mrs Wolstonecraft I only knew first as Mrs Imlay – when she seemed the deserted wife of Imlay – subsequently as Mrs Godwin.’ Stayed w. Mr Boddington during HT’s trial. Mrs B wished to be presented to HT on the evening of his acquittal. B found HT and presented both Mrs B and AO. HT’s remark about hating husbands of pretty women, and other bons mots. AO wanted to set record straight in light of Beloe’s ‘malignant lie’.

6/12/1817  Miss Alderson
Dining with Miss Rose – will read her second tale to her. Godwin’s new novel. Tom’s use of sabilla, (a “purifying powder” - oral hygiene?) A joshing letter re friend Barber. Sexual innuendo (?).

20/12/1817  Longman & Co.
AO suggests ‘New Tales’ as title. She is anxious to see romances and Persuasion by ‘the admirable author of Pride & Prejudice’. Asks them to invite Constable to N’ch on her behalf, ‘for I see he has made a vow never to write to me.’

Addresses both sisters separately: Betty re projected marriage; unfavourable reaction at first, but now changed – her age and income seem sufficient. ‘Women know nothing of the difficulties of a narrow income, but men who have to gain their living and struggle with the world know them all.’ AO in favour of ‘love matches’ rather than marriages ‘of interest’: ‘the woman who marries for money is at best a legal prostitute.’ Tell AO of Tom’s house in Hull when visiting. For Sarah: her soldier lover risks disinheritance if he marries – AO urges patience and caution. For both, ‘Louisa Bohun was as much killed by her perfidious lover as if he had shot her through the head.’ Of her drawings in E’s album.

LdeB's deceitfulness to SB. AO's £100 and conditions suggested by Sam (Alderson) AO sent £105 via 'Roschild's', the £5 for materials for their work, but no acknowledgement. Of misconceptions arising from Tom's sending SdeB her letter of 16/4/1828: L4deB's debts from gambling? Unlikely that Aldersons together can pay all of LdeB's debts. After some build-up, AO agrees to participate in his movement for hospital reform, along with Eliz. Fry, who says she has had this work in mind since her youth. EF willing to use the resources gained from prison work. Hopes for results in Norwich e.g. forming Hospital C’ttee, but is sure doctors and Board will oppose. Hopes to enlist support of Wm. Dalrymple, eminent surgeon. Fears now is not the time to initiate nursing education schemes because hardship of pop. requires all available funds.
Read and enjoyed S’s ‘eloquent and most enlightened’ writings (Colloquies? – pub. 1829), shares his fears of ‘tendencies of Operative Societies’. Relates incidents showing need for nurse training, incl. literacy. Recalls Sisters of Mercy in France: wants to act before Catholics to avoid ‘the spread of their pestilent superstition’. Re great rise in ‘infidelity’ among ‘lower classes’, esp. Norwich weavers. Sick of her ‘prison duties’, which seem to do no good. Friends’ Asylum in (Stoke) Newington for destitute females: ‘such is the state of the London hospitals that no modest female dares go to them.’ Intends writing of her stay in Paris on rtn. from Northrepps (Anna G.). 4/6/1849 Lady Charleville NOu Saw Miss Marlay's name in list for the Queen's ball after her 'meazles'. AO's intermittently poor health causes her to give up London this year. Recommends shawls at Blakeley's on Conduit st - local man, who presented to J Lind 'the most beautiful [shawl] I ever saw'. Of her house: view of Castle Hill so covered with 'lofty' trees and flowering shrubs.

‘Long letter from Mrs Opie. I learn that she is amazingly noticed and courted by tit[ed f]olk & learned folk & rich folk & all sorts of folk ... I do not enjoy her. Thanks for present and remembrance – grateful to receive game, as it cannot be purchased by money, ‘solely by Love’. Sir Samuel Romilly and Sir Philip Frances now both dead. ‘I never was so wretchedly situated’ as now: must leave Sloane St in the spring for Remington (?).

30/8/1829 Robert A Opie LEe

Southey
Thanks for her letter. Appears that copy of his Colloquies has not arrived. Please enquire. RS feels AO’s transition to Q’ism a ‘natural and happy one’, tho far from this himself. But he ‘should have been better pleased if you had not corrupted the King’s English’, a subject which he has ‘very much at heart’. Feels her prison duties ‘not the best direction which heroic charity can take’. Of the danger of the ‘greatest revolution yet to come, to affect the whole Christian world’: that of the poor, who suffer misery. Unless ‘effectual remedies’ are quickly found, society will be over-thrown. Her moral and religious discipline required to counter this threat. Of relief schemes by Sisters of Mercy and Methodists. Of Co-op Socs., ‘a most important movement’ — if carried too far, ‘chaos will come’. More in this vein.
